I did not believe that the snake would strike while I remained motionless, and I was calculating whether by a quick turn and a roll in the opposite direction I could not arrive at a safe distance from my enemy, when I was horroribly startled by a rusting of paper and another warning whirr directly beside my right shoulder.

While askeep 1 had gradually slipped down, so that I now lay at full length upon the grass. As I cautiously turned my eyes in that direction I saw a second snake, a small one, coiled up on the page and ready for action.

I was horrorstricken at this sight for it seemed that I was hemmed in on both sides. But even then I cast my eyes upward and saw protuding from a crevice in the rock above, half the body of a third of the hideous creatures. More than that, there were two or three other heads and necks just wishle here and there about the chinks, directly above me. The old boulders must have been their winter retreat.

yourself? Did you find flirting as pleasing as governing? Which would you prefer to walk on, plain ground or black veivet?" These are a few of the questions that can be asked. When the correct guess is made, the person whose answer leads to the result must in turn leave the room, and the game is so continued until all the players have had their turn, or the game is sended. As a matter of course, the questions should not be too obvious, nor too misleading.
